Households

Terese DeSimio, Wright State University – Main Campus

Document Type
Book Chapter

Publication Date
2014

Find this in a Library
Catalog Record

Description
New to this chapter in the Eighth Edition are e-resources that can be offered as alternatives to print resources. While the e-resources may not be as comprehensive as the print resources, they can provide some good information in the event that access to print resources is not possible. All of the print resources listed are appropriate for a basic library reference collection or circulating collection and most are appropriate for home libraries. From cocktails to cockatiels, this chapter supports a wide variety of reader interests.

Comments
This chapter is an updated version of http://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/ul_pub/5/.

Repository Citation
Household definition is - those who dwell under the same roof and compose a family; also : a social unit composed of those living together in the same dwelling. How to use household in a sentence. · those who dwell under the same roof and compose a family also : a social unit composed of those living together in the same dwelling. household. adjective. Definition of household (Entry 2 of 2). 1 : of or relating to a household : domestic cooking and other household arts. 2 : familiar, common a household name. Disaggregation of household results by sources of income and expenditure patterns permits a fairly detailed analysis of likely changes in poverty. From Cambridge English Corpus. This article therefore identifies the need for further research, qualitative and quantitative, on the relationship between women's employment patterns and the dynamics of household formation. From Cambridge English Corpus. ‘Seventy per cent of households will be better off or unaffected by our plans.’ ‘Assume that each of those households was a nuclear family: a father, a mother and two children.’ ‘Twenty one percent of households in our country failed to find enough to eat in 1999.’ ‘A two week cycle is not adequate for family households and will lead to the town becoming a tip.’ ‘In some Parkhead households there are families where three generations have grown up without knowing work.’